

BC Active Aging Seniors Symposium

Vancouver Trade and Convention Centre
June 18, 2009

Seniors
Services
Society

Finding Home
How to Belong in a Changing World

At our shared booth, we asked participants:

What creates home for you?

Here are a sampling of their collages.

The bottom half of the slide features several thick, light gray, wavy lines that flow from the right side towards the left, creating a sense of movement and depth.

What home means to me:

From left to right, hosting the booth: Alice Heinman (Seniors Services Society), Lynda Brind-Dickson (Seniors Services Society), Julia Kaisla (Finding Home), Debbie Fry (Seniors Services Society), Jessie Sutherland (Finding Home)

What home means to me:

What home means to me:

What home means to me:

What home means to me:

What home means to me:

What home means to me:

What home means to me:

What home means to me:

What home means to me:

What home means to me:

What home means to me:

What home means to me:

What home means to me:

What home means to me:

Seniors Services Society, located in New Westminister, provides local and provincial programs and services that support older adults to live as independently as possible.

www.seniorsservicessociety.ca

604 520-6621

About Finding Home:

The Finding Home Initiative supports individuals and neighbourhoods to:

- Foster a sense of belonging
- Build inclusive communities
- Increases effectiveness in responding to personal and community challenges

Specializing in seniors dialogues, we assist older adults to connect with each other, community resources and generate their own strategies for responding to everyday challenges.

